The Sites Project Authority is beginning the construction procurement process for the Sites Reservoir Project, a $3.9 billion project coming to the Sacramento Valley. One of the state's largest proposed water infrastructure projects, the Sites Reservoir Project is designed to provide a more reliable water supply for California's communities, farms, and the environment.

Led by JP Robinette, Sites Engineering and Construction Manager, the event will cover key information on project status and procurement timelines as the Sites Project Authority ramps up to construction. As we advance this critical project, we look forward to this next step toward construction procurement.
